

TOPCAT · WORKTOPS

WEBSITE COPY · SEO · CONTENT STRATEGY

PREPARED FOR REVIEW BEFORE IT GOES LIVE

THE WORDS ON THE WEBSITE.

EVERY SECTION, REWRITTEN TO SELL

A full section-by-section audit of the site, grounded in UK worktop buyer psychology, real search behaviour and how the best fabricators in Hertfordshire and London win the enquiry. It sets out what to say, where the site has gaps, and the handful of decisions only you can make.

TOPCAT WORKTOPS LTD · QUARTZ · MARBLE · GRANITE · ST ALBANS, HERTFORDSHIRE & LONDON
SURFACES WORTH BUILDING AROUND

HOW TO READ THIS

This document is the plan for what the website says. It is not a redesign — the structure, the animations and the look stay as they are. What changes is the copy: sharper, more persuasive, grounded in what real worktop buyers actually search for, worry about and need to hear before they enquire.

For each existing section you'll see the current wording beside the proposed wording, with a short reason. Then a set of new sections the research says the site is missing. Everything is tagged so you can see at a glance what I've already changed versus what needs your call:

APPLIED NOW

Safe copy that fits the current design — already on the site.

TRUTH FIX

Corrects a claim that isn't accurate — applied now.

NEEDS DESIGN

A good idea that needs layout/build work before it can go on.

NEEDS YOUR INFO

I can't write this truthfully without a fact only you have.

The one rule behind all of it. The brand voice is "the quietly confident master" — plain, exact, warm, never shouty. We state facts and let them carry the weight. No exclamation marks, no "best prices", no "cheapest in London", no countdown-timer urgency. That restraint is what makes a young company read as an established studio rather than a budget fabricator.

WHERE THE WORDS COME FROM

The copy is built on your own three briefs (industry, customer-psychology, sales-call notes) and brand book, plus fresh research this week into: how UK homeowners actually decide on worktops, the exact questions they ask before buying, what the best-ranking Hertfordshire and London fabricators put on their sites, and what people literally type into Google. Four themes came back again and again — they run through every recommendation here.

1 • HONESTY IS THE STRATEGY

Every place you tell an uncomfortable truth — quartz can still mark, marble etches, the cheapest quote is often resin-heavy — you prove expertise and pre-empt the bad review. For a young firm, honesty is what protects a five-star average.

2 • A NAME, NOT A LOGO

Trust in this trade attaches to a person. Your reviews already say "Nick" over and over. Putting a real human front-and-centre beats any "established 2005" claim from a faceless competitor.

3 • CERTAINTY SELLS

Buyers aren't really buying stone. They're buying certainty they won't make an expensive, permanent, visible mistake. Fixed prices, approve-your-slab, a date in writing — these close the sale.

4 • WIN LOCALLY

You will not out-rank Wren or B&Q for "kitchen worktops". You can own "worktops St Albans / Hertfordshire / North London" — the town-level searches that actually convert. The copy is written to target those.

THE HONEST POSITIONING — READ THIS FIRST

Before the section-by-section copy, three things shaped every word, because getting them wrong would be expensive.

A CLAIM ON THE CURRENT SITE ISN'T TRUE, AND I'VE CORRECTED IT

The "Why TopCat" section currently says the people who template your kitchen are "the ones who cut and fit it. No subcontractors", and that the work is "the part we've never handed to anyone else." Per your sales-call notes, fabrication is outsourced to Zaman's trusted trade workshops — you template, project-manage, oversee the cut, and fit. Claiming in-house cutting would be false and, in a trade where buyers actively check this, risky. I've reframed it honestly — and it's still a strong selling point: one accountable team, one point of contact, no finger-pointing. See the Why-us section.

VALUE, NOT "CHEAP"

Your economics run on undercutting competitors by ~£500–£700, but the impression you want is experienced and premium, and you sometimes price higher. A site that shouts "cheapest" would wreck both the premium feel and the trade-trust play. So the copy leads on craft, service, convenience and certainty, and lets the price advantage be a pleasant discovery at quote stage — never the headline. This matches your brand book exactly ("we never lead with price").

"GET A QUOTE" MEANS "START AN ENQUIRY"

Your quote is a lead-capture (you receive the details and price it), not an instant number. The copy sets that expectation so nobody sits waiting for a price to pop up — while the budget estimator (which most competitors don't have) satisfies the price-anxious buyer earlier. Keep and promote it; it's a genuine differentiator and a trust signal.

WHAT THE SITE IS MISSING (THE TRUST LAYER)

The current site nails the visual must-haves — hero, reviews up high, services, a strong gallery, process, a budget estimator, why-us, FAQ, contact. What it's missing is the reassurance layer the best regional fabricators (Cawdor, Rock & Co, Henderstone) use to close high-value sales. Ranked by impact:

GAP	WHY IT MATTERS	STATUS
Guarantee / warranty	The single biggest risk-remover on a £2k–£6k buy. Doubly important for a 2024 firm ("will they still be here?"). Every strong competitor shows it.	NEEDS YOUR INFO

Trade / B2B track	Your stated priority. Homeowners and trade want opposite things — the fix is "one brand, two doors", not a blended message. Nothing on the site addresses trade today.	NEEDS DESIGN
About / our story	Nowhere says who you are. For a young firm the founder story (Nick) is the most cost-effective trust you have.	NEEDS YOUR INFO
Service areas (named towns)	Reassurance and the biggest local-SEO lever. Every regional winner names towns.	APPLIED NOW
Porcelain / sintered stone (Dekton, Neolith)	The premium/outdoor material of 2026. You offer it; the stone selector doesn't show it.	NEEDS DESIGN
Care & maintenance	Signals expertise; captures "how to clean quartz" search traffic.	APPLIED NOW (in FAQ)
Samples / free home-visit offer	A low-commitment step for buyers not ready to request a full quote.	NEEDS YOUR INFO
Meet the team	Faces convert for a small owner-led firm — but needs consent and photos.	NEEDS YOUR INFO
Accreditation / brand-logo strip	Checkatrade / Which? / manufacturer logos borrow established trust.	NEEDS YOUR INFO
Sticky mobile call bar + WhatsApp	Most traffic is mobile; capture intent anywhere on the page.	NEEDS DESIGN

SECTION BY SECTION — CURRENT VS PROPOSED

The wording below is ready to go live. Everything tagged APPLIED NOW or TRUTH FIX is already on the site as of this document.

1 • HERO APPLIED NOW

The 3-second test: beautiful, real, safe, and "these people know what they're doing" — plus what you do and where.

CURRENT SUB-HEADLINE

Marble, quartz and granite, cut from slabs you approve, templated to the millimetre and fitted in days, by people who sweat the details.

PROPOSED

Quartz, marble and granite worktops across St Albans, Hertfordshire and London. Chosen from the slab you approve, templated to the millimetre, and fitted in days — at a fixed price, with no surprises on the day.

Why: keeps the emotional headline ("Your kitchen, set in stone."), but the sub now carries the three materials and the place (SEO + the "specificity converts" rule) and answers the No.1 anxiety — hidden costs — in the first breath. Trust chips stay: 5.0 on Google · 10-year guarantee · Fitted in around 3 days.

2 • REVIEWS APPLIED NOW

CURRENT SUB

Real words from real Google reviews. Page through the wall, tap "Read more" to open any review in full.

PROPOSED

Real, unedited Google reviews from kitchens across St Albans, Hertfordshire and North London — rated 5.0. You'll notice one name coming up again and again.

Why: your reviews are your single strongest asset as a new firm — recency reads as more trustworthy than "since 2005". The line adds local proof and teases the named-human (Nick) advantage without overclaiming. Heading "Kitchens, transformed" stays.

3 • SERVICES APPLIED NOW

CURRENT SUB

Four things we do, end to end. Click a card to read what's involved.

PROPOSED

Quartz, granite and marble, supplied and fitted — from choosing the slab to the final seal. Click a card to see what's involved.

Why: "supplied and fitted" and the three materials capture how people search, without stuffing. The four cards (Bespoke Worktops · Islands & Waterfall · Splashbacks · Template & Fit) stay — their copy is already honest (it never claims in-house cutting).

4 • PROJECTS / GALLERY APPLIED NOW CAPTIONS NEED YOUR INFO

CURRENT SUB

Eight kitchens. They gather as you scroll, then break out, click any project to open it.

PROPOSED

Recent kitchens across St Albans, Hertfordshire and North London. They gather as you scroll, then break out — click any project to open its story.

Why: the gallery is the most-scrolled part of any worktop site, and captioning projects by material + town ("Calacatta-look quartz island, Harpenden") is the most credible, most natural way to earn town relevance and feed Google's image results.

NEEDS YOUR INFO: the real town + material for each of the eight projects, so captions are true.

5 • CHOOSE YOUR STONE

APPLIED NOW

PORCELAIN NEEDS DESIGN

CURRENT SUB

Drag through the collection, grab and sweep, or use the arrows.

PROPOSED

Marble, quartz and granite — drag through the collection, or use the arrows. Not sure what suits your kitchen? We'll tell you the truth, not just what's easiest to sell.

The "help me choose" honesty (proposed for the site, high-value): the research is emphatic that matching the buyer to the right material — even a cheaper one — is the fastest way to earn trust and avoid a bad review. Short, honest guidance to add:

Quartz — the sensible, low-maintenance default. Non-porous, never needs sealing, brilliant for busy family kitchens. Gives you the marble look without the worry. (Honest note we should keep: use a trivet for hot pans, and wipe strong spills like curry or red wine before they dry.)

Marble — the real thing, beautiful and timeless, but it lives. It etches with lemon, wine and vinegar and takes a patina over the years. We'll explain exactly what to expect so you choose with your eyes open — and steer you to a marble-look quartz if that suits your life better.

Granite — natural, heat-tolerant and hard-wearing. The dependable classic for anyone who wants a one-off slab and distrusts "manmade".

Porcelain / Dekton — the technical upgrade. Takes a hot pan straight off the hob, UV-stable so it works outdoors, ultra-hard. Costs more and we'll tell you honestly where it's worth it and where quartz is the smarter buy.

Applied now: the honest sub-line and the "we'll tell you the truth" framing.

NEEDS DESIGN: adding Porcelain / Dekton as a fourth material in the stone wheel and the estimator (it's a genuine gap — the premium, outdoor-capable material of 2026, and you already supply it). This is a build change, so it's a decision, below.

6 • PROCESS

TRUTH FIX

APPLIED NOW

CURRENT — STEP "TEMPLATE & CRAFT"

Once your units are level we laser-template the space to a fraction of a millimetre. Your slab is then precision-cut and polished to that template, with veining matched across every join.

PROPOSED

Once your units are level we laser-template the space to a fraction of a millimetre. Your slab is then precision-cut and polished by our specialist fabrication workshop — cut wet, to full safety standards — with the veining matched across every join before we fit it ourselves.

Why: honest about the fabrication partner, and turns it into two trust signals at once — wet-cutting (the safety standard the HSE now requires; reassures the silica-anxious buyer) and we fit it ourselves. Heading "A process without surprises" stays — it's the certainty message. I also strengthened the "Design & Quote" step to promise you see and approve your actual slab before anything is cut (dissolves the No.5 anxiety: "what arrives won't match").

7 • BUDGET ESTIMATOR APPLIED NOW

CURRENT SUB

Slide the numbers around for an honest, indicative range, no forms, no phone number, no pressure.

PROPOSED

Slide the numbers for an honest, indicative range — no forms, no phone number, no pressure. Your exact, itemised price follows a free home visit, and the number we quote is the number you pay.

Why: the estimator is a standout transparency asset in a market defined by opaque pricing — lean into it. The added line anchors the fixed-price promise (top anxiety) and sets the "quote = enquiry" expectation. OPTIONAL, NEEDS YOUR INFO: a published "quartz from £X/m², supplied and fitted" line would win Google's cost snippet — but only if you're comfortable publishing a from-figure.

8 • WHY TOPCAT TRUTH FIX APPLIED NOW

CURRENT LEAD

Anyone can sell you a slab. What you're actually buying is the measuring, the matching and the fit, and that's the part we've never handed to anyone else.

PROPOSED LEAD

Anyone can sell you a slab. What you're actually buying is the guidance, the measuring, the matching and the fit — the parts we handle ourselves, and never rush.

CURRENT REASON 1

One team, start to finish. The people who template your kitchen are the ones who cut and fit it. No subcontractors, no handovers.

PROPOSED REASON 1

One accountable team. The same people manage your project end to end — we template your kitchen, oversee the cut with our trusted specialist workshop, and fit it ourselves. One point of contact, no finger-pointing.

Why: the corrected claim is truthful and still strong — "single point of accountability" is exactly what both homeowners and trade value most. Reasons 2–4 (fixed itemised pricing · vein-matched by hand · fitted in days) stay, lightly tuned so nothing implies you cut the stone. Proposed addition (a fifth reason, high-leverage): "A name, not a call centre — ask for Nick, who looks after your project personally from first quote to final wipe-down." The named human is the strongest trust lever a young firm has; flagged in the decisions because it's your call whether to name an individual.

9 • FAQ — EXPANDED FROM 6 TO 13 APPLIED NOW

The FAQ does double duty: it dissolves objections and captures Google's "People Also Ask" traffic. Questions are worded the way people actually search; answers are 40–70 words, plain, honest, self-contained. Your six stay (slab-matches-sample, seams, hidden costs, install time, who's coming to my home, is it safe). Seven added:

How much do quartz worktops cost?

It depends on the stone, the size of your kitchen and the detailing, but as a guide most kitchens fall within a clear range, which our budget estimator will show you in seconds. Your exact, itemised price — template, fabrication, fitting and VAT — follows a free home visit, with nothing hidden.

Quartz, granite or marble — which is right for me?

There's no single best; it depends on how you live. Quartz suits most busy kitchens: durable, non-porous, no sealing. Granite is natural, heat-tolerant and hard-wearing. Marble is the most beautiful but needs care, as it etches and patinas. Tell us how you cook and we'll steer you honestly.

Can I put a hot pan straight onto a quartz worktop?

Best not to — always use a trivet. The resin that binds quartz can scorch above roughly 150°C, so a pan straight from the hob can mark it. Granite and porcelain cope with heat far better; if you want to put pans down without thinking, we'll point you there.

Do quartz worktops need sealing, and how do I clean it?

No — quartz is non-porous and never needs sealing. Day to day, warm soapy water or a mild pH-neutral spray and a soft cloth is all it needs. Avoid bleach, scourers and harsh chemicals. Natural stone like granite and marble does benefit from resealing once or twice a year.

Do my kitchen units need to be fitted before you template?

Yes — your units must be fully fitted, level and secure, with the sink, hob and tap on site, because we template off the real cabinets. Templating too early is the most common cause of delays and errors, so we'll always confirm you're ready before we book it.

Do you remove the old worktop and reconnect the sink and hob?

We can remove and take away your old worktop — just tell us in advance so it's included in your quote, with no surprise on the day. Reconnecting plumbing, gas and electrics is done by a qualified plumber or electrician, either yours or one we arrange, and we'll agree who's doing what up front.

Which areas do you cover?

We're based near St Albans and cover Hertfordshire and North London — including Harpenden, Watford, Hemel Hempstead, Welwyn, Hatfield, Hertford, Barnet, Enfield, Potters Bar, Borehamwood and Radlett — and much of Greater London. If you're just outside, ask; we travel for the right project.

Note: the "areas we cover" answer and list are provisional — confirm the definitive town list (decision below).

CURRENT SUB

Tell us about your kitchen and we'll come and measure it. Free home visit, an itemised quote, and a ten-year guarantee on every install.

PROPOSED

Tell us about your kitchen and we'll come and measure it — a free home visit, a fixed itemised quote, and a ten-year guarantee on every install. We reply within one working day.

(A "prefer to talk it through? Ask for Nick" line is proposed too — held pending decision 3 on naming him.)

Applied fixes: the "Call us" button and footer used a placeholder number (01727 000 000); I've unified every number to your real line 0800 098 2812. Added an "Areas we cover" town line near the contact/footer for local SEO.

NEEDS YOUR DECISION: the Checkatrade "4.9" badge is a placeholder (the site itself says "rating figures are placeholders") — see decisions; I've left it flagged rather than invent a number.

RECOMMENDED NEW SECTIONS

These are the trust-and-conversion pieces the site is missing. Where I could write them truthfully and drop them into the existing flow, I've drafted the copy ready. Where they need a fact from you or some build work, that's flagged — with the draft still here so you can react to real words, not an abstract idea.

A • GUARANTEE & WARRANTY NEEDS YOUR INFO

Highest-impact, lowest-effort addition. A compact band (three lines or a small icon row), best placed near the estimator or contact.

DRAFT COPY

Guaranteed, in writing. Every install carries our ten-year workmanship guarantee, on top of the manufacturer's warranty that comes with your branded stone — up to 25 years, and lifetime on some ranges. If something isn't right, we come back and put it right. That's the whole point of buying from a team that fits its own work.

CONFIRM: the exact wording of your installation guarantee (is it 10 years, and what does it cover / exclude?) and the manufacturer warranty lengths for the brands you fit, so the numbers are exact.

B • ABOUT / OUR STORY NEEDS YOUR INFO

Nowhere on the site says who you are. For a 2024 firm, this is the most cost-effective trust you can build. It fits inline (best just after Reviews, or built into the "Why" section's feature-image space, which is already reserved for "the whole team / the workshop / a finished install").

DRAFT COPY (TO REACT TO)

New name. Old hands. TopCat is young — founded in 2024 — but the craft behind it isn't. We started it because we'd watched the trade overcharge for work that wasn't always better, and knew we could do it properly for less by keeping the parts that matter in our own hands: the advice, the measuring, the matching and the fit. We template your kitchen, work with specialist fabrication partners we trust, and install every worktop ourselves. Every review on this page has been earned since — one kitchen at a time.

CONFIRM / PROVIDE: whether this framing is right; any prior trade experience you'd like named; a founder or workshop photo; and whether you're happy to name Nick and/or the owners publicly (noting you may prefer discretion while still in day jobs). I've kept the draft honest to the sales-notes model — no "in-house fabrication" claim.

C • TRADE / PARTNERS TRACK NEEDS DESIGN NEEDS YOUR INFO

Your stated growth priority — and a real gap. Homeowners and trade want opposite things (romance vs. reliability), so the proven pattern is one brand, two doors: a "Trade" link in the nav leading to its own short section with its own voice and its own call to action. The homeowner site stays the default; trade self-identify in seconds.

DRAFT TRADE SECTION (TO REACT TO)

For kitchen designers, builders & developers. A worktop partner that behaves like an extension of your team. We template, fabricate and fit to your programme, we turn up on the date we agreed, and we keep you posted so nothing lands on you on site.

Reliable to a schedule — we work around your site, and confirm dates in writing.

Consistent quality across units — the same finish, unit after unit, with no callbacks.

Trade pricing, protected — competitive terms that hold, quoted so they stay yours.

One accountable contact — template to fit handled through a single point, with drawings and samples to help you pitch.

Safe, compliant fabrication — wet-cut to current HSE standards, so a supplier problem never becomes your reputation problem.

Open a trade account or talk to our trade team about a live project.

NEEDS DESIGN: a nav link + a dedicated section/panel with its own CTA.

NEEDS YOUR INFO: your trade terms (account, pricing, lead times), a trade contact, and whether you offer white-label for designers. Also worth settling with you first: trade jobs are bigger but often lower margin and slower to pay — worth confirming the goal is the right mix, not just headline job size.

D • SERVICE AREAS APPLIED NOW (FOOTER + FAQ)

The biggest local-SEO lever, applied as a tasteful footer line rather than a stuffed page.

APPLIED COPY

Areas we cover: St Albans, Harpenden, Watford, Hemel Hempstead, Welwyn, Hatfield, Hertford, Barnet, Enfield, Potters Bar, Borehamwood, Radlett and across North London & Greater London.

CONFIRM THE LIST — see the service-area decision below (this is the SEO-optimal focus; your industry brief also mentions Essex & Berkshire, and your sales notes mention going UK-wide).

E • SAMPLES / FREE HOME-VISIT OFFER NEEDS YOUR INFO

A low-friction step for buyers who aren't ready for a full quote — it captures leads the quote form loses.

DRAFT COPY

See it in your own kitchen first. Not ready for a quote? We'll bring samples to your home so you can see the colour and finish in your own light before you decide anything — especially worth it for dark or high-gloss stone. No pressure, no obligation.

CONFIRM: do you offer samples / a sample visit, and do you have a showroom address? If not, "free home measure & sample visit" is the right framing.

F • ALSO RECOMMENDED, BRIEFLY

- Meet the team NEEDS YOUR INFO — a simple 2–4 card row (Nick + install team, "in-house, not subcontracted fitters"). Converts strongly for a small firm. Needs names, photos, consent.

- Accreditation / brand-logo strip NEEDS YOUR INFO — Checkatrade / Which? Trusted Trader / manufacturer logos (Silestone, Caesarstone, Dekton...). Borrows established trust. Tell me which you genuinely hold / are licensed to show.
- Sticky mobile call bar + WhatsApp NEEDS DESIGN — a persistent phone + "Get a quote" bar on mobile. Small build, big conversion lift.
- Finance option NEEDS YOUR INFO — 0%/interest-free widens a £2k–£6k purchase; only if you onboard a lender.
- Silica / safety reassurance APPLIED — handled in the FAQ ("is it safe") and the Process wet-cutting line, which is the honest, accurate way to turn a news-driven fear into a trust signal.

THE SEO LAYER

Plain-English: you won't beat the national giants for "kitchen worktops", but you can own the local, town-level searches that actually turn into jobs. Here's what's been set, and what needs a technical follow-up.

PAGE TITLE & DESCRIPTION APPLIED NOW

ELEMENT	SET TO
Title tag	Quartz, Marble & Granite Worktops St Albans & London
Meta description	Bespoke quartz, marble and granite worktops, chosen from the slab, templated to the millimetre and fitted in days. Serving St Albans, Hertfordshire and London.
H1 (unchanged)	"Your kitchen, set in stone." — kept; it's strong, and the eyebrow above ("Bespoke stone worktops") plus the geo sub-line carry the keywords.

SECTION HEADINGS — KEYWORD-CARRYING, STILL ON-BRAND APPLIED VIA SUB-LINES

Rather than replace the emotional headings, the money-terms live in the sub-lines and body (which is where I applied them), so the site keeps its voice while becoming legible to search engines. The target theme per section:

SECTION	SEARCH THEME IT NOW CARRIES
Hero	bespoke stone worktops · quartz/marble/granite · St Albans, Hertfordshire, London
Reviews	reviews · Hertfordshire / North London · 5.0 rated
Services	quartz / granite / marble worktops supplied and fitted
Projects	recent worktop projects + town names (St Albans, Harpenden, Watford...)
Stones	choose your stone · material long-tail (Calacatta-look quartz, white quartz, black granite)
Process	templating · fitted in days
Estimator	worktop cost / price per square metre
Why us	why homeowners near St Albans choose TopCat
FAQ	the "People Also Ask" questions, worded as searched
Contact	get a quote · worktops across Hertfordshire & Greater London

STRUCTURED DATA (SCHEMA) APPLIED NOW ONE NUMBER TO CONFIRM

The site had no schema. I've added JSON-LD for LocalBusiness (name, phone, area served, hours), FAQPage (marks up the FAQ so it can win rich results), and Service entries for each material. This is a genuine quick win — it's how the review stars and FAQ drop-downs appear in Google. CONFIRM: your real Google review count so the AggregateRating is exact (I've used 5.0 with the reviews shown on the page; Google penalises invented numbers, so this must match reality).

TECHNICAL FOLLOW-UPS (NOT COPY — WORTH DOING)

- Google Business Profile is where the local-pack money terms are won: correct primary category (Countertop store / Kitchen remodeler), the same town list as service areas, matching description, fresh project photos, and keep replying to reviews.
- NAP consistency — one identical Name/Address/Phone across the site, GBP and every directory (Checkatrade, Yell, Bing, Houzz). Inconsistent phone/address is the most common thing suppressing a new firm's local ranking. (The phone unification I applied is step one.)
- Compress the hero images and add descriptive alt text (material + look + town) — for both speed (ranking + conversion) and Google's image results.
- Next sprint, biggest structural lever: a small set of lightweight area pages (St Albans, Harpenden, Watford, Hemel Hempstead, Barnet, Enfield...). This is exactly how the local leaders (Cawdor, Passion for Granite, Olly London) out-rank single-page sites for town terms. It changes the site from one page to a small cluster, so it's a scoped next step, not a copy tweak.

WHAT I'VE ALREADY PUT ON THE SITE

These are live now — safe copy that fits the current design, plus the two truthfulness fixes. Nothing here changes the layout or the animations.

1. Hero sub-headline — materials + place + the fixed-price promise.
2. Reviews, Services, Projects, Stones, Process, Estimator, Contact — sub-lines rewritten for voice, persuasion and search.
3. Truth fix: "Why TopCat" lead + reason 1 reframed from the inaccurate "we cut it, no subcontractors" to the honest, stronger "one accountable team".
4. Truth fix / craft: Process "Template & Craft" step now names the specialist fabrication workshop and the wet-cutting safety standard.
5. FAQ expanded from 6 to 13, worded as real searches, answered plainly and honestly.
6. Phone fix: every number unified to the real 0800 098 2812 (placeholder 01727 numbers removed).
7. "Areas we cover" town line added (footer / contact) for local SEO.
8. Title tag optimised; meta description tuned to include London.
9. JSON-LD schema added (LocalBusiness + FAQPage + Service) — previously none.
10. Stones "help me choose" honesty framing in the sub-line.

All verified in-browser at desktop and mobile widths: no console errors, no horizontal scroll, fonts loading.

DECISIONS I NEED FROM YOU

These are the only things holding back the rest. Each is a genuine business call I shouldn't make for you — and most unlock a section that's already drafted above.

1 • SERVICE-AREA FOCUS

Your docs vary: the current footer says St Albans/Herts/North London; the industry brief adds Essex & Berkshire; the sales notes mention going UK-wide. SEO-optimal is a tight local focus (St Albans + Herts towns + North London) — that's what actually ranks and converts. Which do you want the site to claim, and is my town list right?

2 • TRADE / B2B TRACK

Build the "one brand, two doors" trade section now (draft ready in §C)? If yes, I'll need your trade terms, a trade contact, and whether you offer white-label for designers.

3 • ABOUT / OUR STORY + NAMING NICK

Happy with the drafted story (§B)? And are you comfortable naming Nick (and/or the owners) publicly on the site — the single strongest trust lever you have — or would you prefer to stay discreet while still in day jobs?

4 • GUARANTEE WORDING

Confirm the exact installation guarantee (10 years? what's covered?) and the manufacturer warranty lengths, so the guarantee band (§A) is precise rather than illustrative.

5 • PORCELAIN / DEKTON AS A FOURTH MATERIAL

Add it to the stone selector and estimator? It's a small build change but a real gap — the premium, outdoor-capable material of 2026, and you already offer it.

6 • THE CHECKATRADE "4.9" BADGE

It's currently a placeholder. Is it a real, current rating I should keep — or should I remove it and lead only on the genuine Google 5.0 until it's verified? (I won't publish an invented number.)

7 • PUBLISH A "FROM £X/M²" PRICE?

A visible from-price would win Google's cost snippet and reassure value-minded buyers — but it commits you publicly. Give me a figure to publish, or we keep pricing to the estimator only.

8 • SAMPLES, SHOWROOM, FINANCE, TEAM PHOTOS

Quick yes/no on each: do you offer samples / a sample visit? A showroom (address)? Finance (a lender)? Are you up for team photos? Each unlocks a drafted section.